TEE SHEET MANAGEMENT SOLUTIONS

There are many different suppliers of tee sheet management software, and most membership management software providers have their own version which is available as part of their product. They all have varying degrees of functionality, and some integrate directly with your function management software, so can provide full function information and invoicing for your team.

Some make member tee time booking available through their app, and some provide very comprehensive reports on tee time usage, tee time yield and geographical information on our visitors.

Some will integrate directly to your competition software, allowing members to book their tee times through the system and also to have their account debited for the entry fee in one single action.

One important point to consider is if you want visitors to be able to book tee times with you, and pay, online. When choosing your preferred option, it is important to consider thoroughly what you want your system to do, in as much detail as possible, and then compare your options.

Companies such as Intelligent Golf, offer a tee sheet which is fully integrated with their membership and club management system, allowing function detail to be added for society/corporate bookings, linking to your POS system for adding purchases on the day, and providing an invoice post event. The system also links for members booking to their competition software, so you can build competition tee sheets, link to member accounts, process results and notify members of the leaderboard.

Other clubs have systems such as BRS, which was originally a tee sheet with online capabilities, and linked to club management software. They are now owned by NBC and linked with GolfNow, so can provide their own club management package, or you can link to golf genius directly for running member competitions.

You can use App providers to link products should you not have a fully integrated option, where members can log in and access their account, tee sheet, and even whs. One provider who can do this for you is Coursemate, a GCMA partner and their product can provide a number of additional benefits.
